The LSS Service Plan 2012/2013 – 2014/2015 is a publication of the Legal Services Society (LSS). LSS is a non-government organization that provides legal aid to British Columbians. LSS is funded primarily by the provincial government and also receives grants from the Law Foundation and the Notary Foundation.

The LSS Service Plan 2012/2013 – 2014/2015 is also available in PDF on the LSS website at www.legalaid.bc.ca.

Letter from the Board Chair to the Minister Responsible and Accountability Statement

February 8, 2012

Honourable Shirley Bond
Minister of Justice and Attorney General

Dear Ms. Attorney,

On behalf of the board of directors and employees of the Legal Services Society, I am pleased to present our service plan for 2012/2013 – 2014/2015.

To fulfill its mandate, the Legal Services Society (LSS or the society) offers legal representation for financially eligible people with serious family, child protection, criminal, or immigration problems, as well as information and advice services designed to help people resolve a wide range of legal problems on their own. These programs help achieve early and lasting solutions for people with low incomes, greater efficiency for the justice system, and prudent management of public funds.

As in previous years, the society's key challenges continue to be driven by external factors such as the economy, the number of people charged with criminal offences, family breakup, legislative policies, the number of children placed in government care, and the revenue available to the society. LSS is also finding it increasingly difficult to find lawyers willing to take legal aid cases at the tariff rates provided by current revenues.

During the past fiscal year, LSS successfully advanced two strategic initiatives outlined in the 2011/2012 service plan that were identified by the board as having the greatest long-term impact on these challenges. The first was to deliver cost-effective legal aid by collaborating with other social services agencies. LSS responded by funding community organizations in 24 locations to help us deliver our services to remote, rural, and Aboriginal communities where there are often barriers to accessing legal services. The second was to encourage other justice system participants to develop protocols similar to those used by the society to manage the cost and complexity of large criminal cases. LSS applauds the Minister of Justice and Attorney General for establishing an inter-ministerial committee to examine this issue, and we are pleased to be included among the committee's members.

I am also pleased to report that the Ministry of Justice has agreed to provide LSS with an additional $2.1 million annually for our family law programs. This is the first funding increase for family law since 2005 and will ensure that we are able to maintain current levels of service despite rising costs. These programs are particularly important because they focus on achieving early and stable resolutions, often without going to court.

Despite these successes, providing people with low incomes the legal services they need remains a challenge that requires a long-term vision on two fronts. The first is operational. The society will test new delivery models, evaluate quality assured services, and refine our work to ensure we continue to get the most out of every dollar we spend.

The second front is strategic. At LSS, we believe the key to improving legal aid is to develop a more efficient and effective justice system. The society has had considerable success in improving the efficiency and effectiveness of legal aid. Over the past nine years, we have changed legal aid from a court-centred service that focused only on ensuring fair process, to a client-centred service that focuses on helping people find timely and lasting solutions to their legal problems. This solution-oriented problem-solving approach is a benefit to both the justice system and those who use it because it helps people resolve their problems, get out of the courts, and return to their normal lives. LSS intends to discuss with justice system stakeholders how our experience and expertise in legal aid reform can be used to create a better justice system, because improving access to justice for all British Columbians will also improve legal aid for those who need it most.

I would be remiss if I did not mention the dedication of my fellow board members and LSS staff. In addition to carrying out their regular duties, many are involved in legal aid and justice reform initiatives at a local, national, and international level. They are the society's greatest resource.

The government has recently announced a review of all Crown corporations. Crown corporations are all expected to participate and implement the results. At this time, neither the scope nor the anticipated outcomes of the review are known. Accommodating the demands of this process may replace some of the priorities outlined in this service plan.

Statement of accountability

The Legal Services Society Service Plan 2012/2013 – 2014/2015 was prepared under the board's direction in accordance with the Budget Transparency and Accountability Act and the BC Reporting Principles. The plan is consistent with the government's strategic priorities and fiscal plan. The board is accountable for the contents of the plan, including what has been included in the plan and how it has been reported.

All significant assumptions, policy decisions, events, and identified risks, as of January 1, 2012, have been considered in preparing the plan. The performance measures presented are consistent with the society's mandate and goals, and focus on aspects critical to the organization's performance. The targets in this plan have been determined based on an assessment of the society's operating environment, forecast conditions, risk assessment, and past performance.

Yours truly,

E. David Crossin, QC
Chair, LSS Board of Directors

Vision, Mission, Values

To better reflect our commitment to an integrated legal aid model, the society revised its vision, mission, and values statements in 2010/2011. These statements, which guide our work, are listed below.

Our vision

Our vision is a British Columbia where all people are able to find timely and lasting solutions to their legal issues that improve their quality of life.

Our mission

Our mission is to provide innovative and integrated services that enable clients to effectively address their legal issues in a broad social context.

LSS values

We value:

- making a positive difference in our clients' lives through legal aid services;
- engaging clients in finding solutions that meet their legal needs;
- recognizing diverse cultures and perspectives;
- compassion, integrity, and respect in our relationships with clients, staff, and stakeholders;
- collaboration with service partners and stakeholders;
- innovative approaches to solving problems;
- excellence and continuous improvement; and
- accountability and openness.

Organization Overview

The Legal Services Society (LSS or the society) provides legal aid in British Columbia. Created by the Legal Services Society Act in 1979, LSS is a non-profit organization that remains independent of government. Our priority is to serve the interests of people with low incomes.

LSS core services

Core legal aid services include legal information, advice, and representation.

- Legal information: The society's legal information services are delivered by front-line staff, including Aboriginal community legal workers (ACLWs), legal information outreach workers (LIOWs), and local agents, and through publications and websites. Other information services include training and support for community advocates who work with LSS clients. LSS also collaborates with community partners and government agencies to ensure people with low incomes have access to the services they need to solve their legal issues.
- Legal advice: LSS offers legal advice through criminal and family duty counsel in courthouses across BC; through immigration duty counsel for people in detention at the Canada Border Services Agency's enforcement centre in Vancouver; through the Family LawLINE; and through the Brydges Line telephone service for people who have been or may be arrested. LSS also provides family advice lawyers at various locations. LSS advice services may be subject to a financial eligibility test.
- Legal representation: LSS provides legal representation for financially eligible people with serious family, child protection, or criminal law problems. Legal representation is also available for people who face a refugee or deportation hearing, a Mental Health Review Panel or BC Review Board hearing, or who have a prison issue for which the Charter of Rights and Freedoms establishes a right to counsel.

LSS clients

Every year, hundreds of thousands of BC residents receive legal aid information, advice, and representation services. We strive to engage our clients in finding solutions to their legal problems. By taking an integrated approach, legal aid services can help clients prevent future legal issues and increase their ability to positively contribute to society.

Legal aid clients are among the province's most vulnerable and marginalized citizens. Our clients do not have the financial resources — or frequently the educational, social, or health resources — to effectively access the justice system when their families, freedom, or safety are at risk. Of the 27,900 clients who were referred to a lawyer in 2010/2011, over 69% had less than a high school education and over 26% were Aboriginal.

LSS mandate

Under Section 9 of the current LSS Act, the society's mandate is to:

- help people solve their legal problems and to facilitate access to justice,
 - establish and administer an effective and efficient system for providing legal aid to people in BC, and
 - provide advice to the Attorney General about legal aid and access to justice for people in BC.
- Section 9 also states that the society is to:
- give priority to identifying and assessing the legal needs of people with low incomes in BC,
 - consider the perspectives of both justice system service providers and the general public,
 - coordinate legal aid with other aspects of the justice system and community services, and
 - be flexible and innovative in carrying out its mandate.

Section 11(4) of the act limits the amount of legal aid the society can provide to any client to "the extent of legal or other services that a reasonable person of modest means would use to resolve the problem."

Governance

The society is governed by a nine-member board of directors. Under its bylaws, the board's role is "to ensure the effective governance of the society through setting direction, monitoring performance, and hiring and supporting the executive director."

LSS is committed to strong corporate governance practices that enable public accountability and transparency. The society adheres to the governance principles established by the Board Resourcing and Development Office (BRDO) and is in full compliance with BRDO guidelines. To maintain excellence in board governance, LSS reviews its governance framework regularly to ensure it meets the society's ongoing business needs while being consistent with recognized best practices.

Board of directors

The governance framework of the board consists of policies and bylaws that reflect established governance best practices. Of the nine board members:

- five are appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice and Attorney General, and
- four are appointed by the Law Society of BC after consultation with the executive of the BC Branch of the Canadian Bar Association.

The LSS Act outlines the need for the board as a whole to have a range of knowledge, skills, and experience in such areas as:

- business management and the financial affairs of public and private sector organizations;
- law and the operation of courts, tribunals, and alternative dispute resolution processes;
- the provision of legal aid;
- BC's cultural and geographic diversity; and
- the social and economic circumstances associated with the special legal needs of people with low incomes.

At their first meeting in each fiscal year, the directors of the board elect a board chair and an Executive Committee. Headed by the board chair and consisting of at least three other board directors, the Executive Committee holds all the powers of the board between meetings except the power to fill vacancies on or alter the membership of board committees and specific powers excluded by resolution of the board.

The chair, in consultation with the society’s executive director, appoints the members of these committees, unless the board directs otherwise. Senior management

The board of directors appoints an executive director to administer the business of the society. The executive director chairs the society's Executive Management Committee (EMC), which is made up of the directors of the four internal LSS divisions. Strategic Context

The LSS Service Plan 2012/2013 – 2014/2015 outlines the strategic approach the society will take to achieve its mission to provide innovative and integrated services that enable clients to effectively address their legal issues in a broad social context. Our mission is supported by the long-term goals outlined in this plan: to ensure that clients use legal aid services, participate in the process of resolving their issues, and have access to services that are integrated with the work of other service providers so clients can also get help with related legal and non-legal issues.

The justice system is at a critical juncture. Rising costs, increasing case complexity, and court delays all act as impediments to clients seeking timely and lasting solutions to their legal problems. LSS is a proven leader in delivering effective low-cost scalable solutions that help clients navigate the justice system, such as legal information outreach workers, collaborative services, and telephone advice lines. In the coming years, LSS has the opportunity to play an even greater leadership role in bringing innovative change, not just to legal aid, but to the justice system as a whole.

LSS remains committed to improving client outcomes, but cannot accomplish this alone. Significant challenges facing the justice system include demographic trends (greying of the bar), rising costs for large cases that risk consuming a growing share of justice system resources, and a lack of coordination among justice system partners.

To be successful, LSS needs to deliver services in an effective, efficient, and innovative manner. The key challenges affecting the society's ability to achieve its mission are financial pressures; fluctuating service demand; the evolving and rising cost of legal aid infrastructure, capacity and staff commitment; and stakeholder relations.

- Financial pressures: Ongoing low interest rates reduce LSS's revenue from non-government sources. Additional fiscal risks include higher case costs due to legislative changes, court delays, and effective but expensive alternative dispute resolution models.
- Fluctuating service demand: Increased financial pressure makes it critical for LSS to effectively monitor and understand key factors influencing demand. These factors include changes in government policy direction and economic indicators (e.g., unemployment rates). Moreover, demand for services among key client groups (Aboriginal clients or underserved communities) is not adequately met because legal aid services are not accessible to or appropriate for these groups.
- Legal aid infrastructure: To manage financial pressures and fluctuations in service demand, and deliver needed services, the society needs an agile and responsive legal aid infrastructure (lawyers, staff, and technological solutions).

Our ability to place cases within a reasonable timeframe is undermined by threats to lawyer supply, including an aging bar, an insufficient number of newly called lawyers taking cases, and the dissatisfaction of the bar with the justice system.

To help clients achieve timely and lasting solutions, LSS also requires an information technology system that is flexible and responsive to support innovative service delivery models in uncertain environments. Significant resource investments will be required to implement such a system and ensure services are not disrupted.

The society's ability to achieve its goals depends on the commitment of experienced and engaged staff. Our staff faces ongoing challenges to providing innovative services with limited human and financial resources.

Through community and employee engagement initiatives, LSS is building organizational capacity to undertake the strategies laid out in this plan and respond effectively to our changing environment.

- Stakeholder relations: Changes in the external environment require LSS to take a leadership role in facilitating access to justice initiatives that ensure clients receive the best possible services. We can only do this if stakeholders are clear on our strategic direction and perceive us to have effective processes and controls. However, the society's ability to collaborate with service partners on innovative projects is limited by insufficient resources and competing priorities throughout the justice system.

Key Strategic Issues

The following tables outline the primary strategic issues identified for 2012/2013 – 2014/2015, an assessment of the risks and opportunities these issues represent, and the society’s intended responses. The goals referenced in the tables below appear in the next section, “Goals, Strategies, Measures, and Targets.”

¹ Stakeholders are groups that have a direct or indirect interest in the society's mandate, services, and policies (e.g., service partners, staff, clients, the public, justice system partners, and government).

Goals, Strategies, Measures, and Targets

The goals, strategies, and performance measures outlined in this service plan are designed to engage LSS staff, our service partners, and our clients in finding timely and lasting solutions to clients' legal issues while managing the budget.

The society's goals, continued from the 2008/2009 plan, describe our long-term commitment to building an integrated legal aid model. The strategies to achieve these goals have been adjusted in this plan to respond to changes in our internal and external environment. All adjustments are noted in the table on page 14.

Performance management system

LSS assesses its performance by surveying key stakeholder groups. LSS staff help develop the survey questions and methodology, and independent research organizations carry out the data collection and analysis to ensure data is accurate and reliable. The society also monitors and reports on key internal operational and financial data, which are tested internally.

We selected satisfaction measures to track our overall progress in achieving intended outcomes for clients. These measures also track our success in engaging the support of private lawyers, who are our primary service partners; our employees, who are critical to service quality; and the public, to whom we are ultimately accountable. Increasing levels of client and lawyer satisfaction, employee engagement, and public support will demonstrate that we are meeting these stakeholders' needs. LSS chose budget-to-actual expenditure variance as a measure of financial performance.

LSS benchmarks its performance against like organizations, where possible. By using the Common Measurement Tool, an independent client satisfaction benchmarking tool and data service provided by the Institute for Citizen-Centred Services, we are able to compare client satisfaction results against government agencies providing similar services. We benchmark our employee engagement score against the BC Public Service using statistics provided by BC Stats, the organization that conducts our Work Environment Survey and administers the same survey to all BC Public Service Employees annually. Though legal aid plans across Canada have not yet developed a common method of measuring performance, we regularly share performance and outcome information. Our lawyer satisfaction results, for example, are benchmarked against roughly comparable results from the legal aid plan in Ontario.

We set targets by considering benchmark data, calculating what would be a statistically significant change in a particular measure, and evaluating the level of improvement possible given the strategies in place and activities planned in the coming period. Meeting our targets would demonstrate continuous improvement in stakeholder satisfaction with, support for, and use of our services, as well as financial responsibility, all of which are necessary to achieve our goals.

Goal 1 • Use

People with low incomes who have legal issues use LSS services.

Strategies
1.1 Simplify the client application process to improve the accessibility of legal aid services.
1.2 Use innovative, collaborative, and flexible models (including technology) to deliver legal aid services, with an emphasis on Aboriginal and other underserved communities.
1.3 Collaborate with and enable service partners ¹ to increase awareness of, confidence in, and use of legal aid services.
Performance measures	Actual	Forecast	Targets
	2010/2011	2011/2012	2012/2013	2013/2014	2014/2015
(a) Percent of clients satisfied with the accessibility of LSS services (tri-annual survey)	69%	N/A	N/A	73%	N/A
(b) Percent of clients satisfied with the helpfulness of LSS services (tri-annual survey)	62%	N/A	N/A	66%	N/A
(c) Percent of clients satisfied overall with LSS services (tri-annual survey)	62%	N/A	N/A	66%	N/A
Importance of these measures
Client satisfaction overall and with the accessibility and helpfulness of LSS services shows that we are providing clients with the services they need when and where they need them, fulfilling our mandate to help people solve their legal problems and facilitate access to justice.
¹ Service partners are agents or agencies LSS collaborates with to provide services, including local agents, tariff lawyers, and community agencies.

Goal 2 • Participate

People with low incomes participate in solving and avoiding legal issues.

Strategies
2.1 Provide support to front-line workers ¹ to help them inform clients about legal aid services and their legal rights and responsibilities early in the process.
Performance measures	Actual	Forecast	Targets
	2010/2011	2011/2012	2012/2013	2013/2014	2014/2015
(a) Percent of clients satisfied with LSS support to help them participate in resolving their legal issues (tri-annual survey)	Baseline set: 59%	N/A	N/A	63%	N/A
(b) Percent of lawyers satisfied with LSS support to increase their ability to engage clients in solving their legal issues (tri-annual survey)	Baseline set: 42% (2009/2010)	N/A	46%	N/A	N/A
Importance of these measures
Clients who participate in finding solutions to their legal problems are more likely to achieve positive, lasting outcomes. Measures (a) and (b) assess the effectiveness of the support provided by LSS to clients and lawyers to help clients participate.
¹ Front-line workers are LSS staff and service partners who deal directly with legal aid clients (e.g., LIOWs and intake staff).

Goal 3 • Collaborate

People with low incomes get help with related legal issues so they can solve and prevent legal problems.

Strategies
3.1 Collaborate and integrate with service partners to improve access to services for clients' related legal issues.
3.2 Provide support to front-line workers and service partners to help them assess and refer clients to services for their related legal issues.
3.3 Work with the Ministry of Justice and other ministries to develop an integrated approach to help clients address legal and related legal issues.
Performance measures	Actual	Forecast	Targets
	2010/2012	2011/2012	2012/2013	2014/2015	2014/2015
(a) Percent of clients satisfied with the level of support LSS gave them to address their related legal issues (tri-annual survey)	Baseline set: 48%	N/A	N/A	52%	N/A
(b) Percent of lawyers satisfied with LSS support for increasing their ability to help clients address related legal issues (tri-annual survey)	Baseline set: 22% (2009/2010)	N/A	26%	N/A	N/A
(c) Percent of lawyers who support the integrated approach to providing legal aid services (tri-annual survey)	Baseline set: 71% (2009/2010)	N/A	75%	N/A	N/A
Importance of these measures
Clients who get help for their related legal issues are more likely to achieve positive, lasting solutions to their legal issues. Measure (a) tracks the effectiveness of LSS efforts to provide clients with information about services for related legal issues. Integrating services requires all service partners to have the necessary skills and resources. Measures (b) and (c) assess our progress on supplying lawyers with the tools and information to support this approach.

Goal 4 • Manage

LSS manages resources soundly.

Strategies
4.1 Effectively communicate the society's strategic direction to stakeholders.
4.2 Demonstrate value for money through evidence-based decision making ¹ and enhanced business processes.
4.3 Develop and implement lawyer engagement initiatives.
4.4 Introduce cross-departmental teams to implement employee engagement initiatives.
4.5 Improve information technology systems to respond to a changing environment.
Performance measures	Actual	Forecast	Targets
	2010/2011	2011/2012	2012/2013	2013/2014	2014/2015
(a) Overall average employee engagement score (tri-annual survey)	Baseline set: 70 (2007/2008)	73	N/A	N/A	73
(b) Percent of lawyers satisfied with the overall support provided by LSS (tri-annual survey)	Baseline set: 62% (2009/2010)	N/A	66%	N/A	N/A
(c) Number of new lawyers taking more than three referrals in the first six months (annual measure)	Baseline set: 60	>60	>60	>60	>60
(d) Budget-to-actual expenditure variance (annual measure)*	-0.5%	<1.5%	<1.5%	<1.5%	<1.5%
(e) Percent of the public that supports the provision of legal aid services (annual survey)	89%	>90%	>90%	>90%	>90%
Importance of these measures
High employee engagement in the public sector, tracked by measure (a), is linked to improved service for clients. Measures (b) and (c) qualitatively and quantitatively assess our progress on maintaining a sustainable supply of lawyers to provide services to clients across BC. Maintaining a low budget-to-actual expenditure variance, measure (d), shows that we are effectively managing expenditures. Sustained public support for legal aid, measure (e), should enhance government confidence in our services.
*The budget-to-actual expenditure variance is calculated at year-end, using the following formula: Variance = actual expenditures/budgeted expenditures. Specific expenditures that are budgeted separately as they occur are excluded from this calculation.
¹ Evidence-based decision making: Decision-making process based on the synthesis of internal and external evidence (e.g., data analysis, social science research, internal business intelligence, etc.)

Government Letter of Expectations

LSS and the Ministry of Justice jointly approve a government letter of expectations (GLE) from the ministry to the society each year.

The government uses GLEs to communicate its priorities, mandate direction, and key performance objectives to each Crown agency for the coming year. For LSS, the government letter supplements the three-year Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between LSS and the ministry, which sets out the roles and responsibilities of both parties as well as the anticipated funding LSS will receive from the ministry and the priorities for allocating that funding. The GLE also supplements the LSS Act, which establishes the overall mandate and administrative framework for the society.

Our actions to address the direction set out in the GLE for 2012/2013 are outlined in the table below.

Government letter of expectations	LSS alignment
Financial performance
Work with the government to ensure LSS meets budget variance targets.	LSS has established rigorous cost monitoring and forecasting models to help ensure the society meets budget targets.
Prepare monthly reports that set out and forecast the financial situation of the exceptional matters fund.	LSS will continue to provide monthly reports to the Ministry of Justice on exceptional matters.
Support policy, planning, and program coordination
Cooperate and coordinate with justice system partners on justice reform initiatives that further LSS goals.	LSS will collaborate with the Ministry of Justice on justice transformation initiatives as revenue allows.
Collaborate with government on issues such as large cases.	LSS will collaborate with key stakeholders in the justice system to enhance large case management.
Promote early, collaborative dispute resolution in child protection and family law cases.	LSS will continue to support early, consensual dispute resolution in family and CFCSA cases through the simplified tariff as revenue allows.
	LSS will continue to communicate with the Ministry of Justice on government and society priorities and the LSS service plan throughout the annual planning process.
